

Questionnaire on access that NGOs have to environmental information

1. How well do relevant authorities fulfill their responsibilities regarding environmental information, in your opinion?

Very well	Well	Not well enough

2. Have you ever requested environmental information or data from the Ministry of Environment and Physical Planning or any other relevant authority (public health authority, environmental inspectorate, local government bodies)?

Yes	No

3. If yes, how many requests do you submit per year?

4. How do you submit your request(s)? You may check more than one box.

By e-mail	By post	By telephone	By fax	In person

5. How soon do the responses arrive?

On time	With delay	Never

6. Have you ever been denied environmental information or data that you have requested?

Yes	No

7. If yes, please briefly explain the reasons given for denial.

8. Have you ever paid for environmental information or data?

Yes	No

9. If yes, please briefly explain why a fee was required and state whether it was reasonable.

10. In your experience, how efficient are the following methods of disseminating environmental information?
(Please rank: 5 = most efficient, 1 = least efficient).

E-mail	Radio programmes	Newspaper articles	Brochures/posters/fact sheets	TV spots/programmes	Direct mail	Telephone/fax	Internet	Personal discussion

11. What method(s) do you use to deliver environmental information to your constituents and/or members? You may check more than one box.

E-mail	Radio programmes	Newspaper articles	Brochures/posters/fact sheets	TV spots/programmes	Direct mail	Telephone/fax	Internet	Personal discussion

12. Does your NGO maintain an archive or database of environmental information?

Yes	No

13. If it is computerised, what software do you use?

14. Is the environmental information that your NGO collects available to the general public?

Yes	No

15. How regularly do you disseminate this information?

Actively, on own initiative	Only upon request

16. Does your NGO provide this information free of charge?

Yes	No

17. If you charge for such information, please state why and specify the average fee in EUR.
